

January 2014

Dear Sir or Madam:

The Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act ("CPSIA") became law in August 2008. Gildan is aware of this law and the requirements it imposes. Gildan further recognizes that consumer product safety is an issue of tremendous importance, and Gildan is therefore committed to taking all necessary measures to fulfill its obligations under the CPSIA.

Gildan confirms that the products it sells are by their nature free of lead and that the child-care articles it sells are free of phthalates, such that Gildan's children's products comply with current CPSIA limits on lead and phthalate content, as well as the reduced lead content limits that may take effect in the future. Gildan confirms that its children's products manufactured on or after August 14, 2009 have tracking labels as required under the CPSIA. Gildan also confirms that its products are already in compliance with Federal Hazardous Substances Act, the Flammable Fabrics Act, the Poison Prevention Packaging Act, and any state law.

Pursuant to the CPSIA, Gildan will provide General Conformity Certifications for all products manufactured on or after February 10, 2010 that are subject to a consumer product safety rule under the CPSIA or similar rule, ban, standard, or regulation under any other statute enforced by the Consumer Product Safety Commission ("CPSC") and that Gildan imports for consumption or warehousing or distributes in commerce. To support these certifications, Gildan will commission or conduct and will document any product testing required by the CPSIA.

Gildan is committed to ensure that its products comply with all CPSIA requirements as those requirements become effective, to providing its customers with all required information, and to meeting its customers' individual needs. Gildan looks forward to working with you on this important issue. If you have questions or would like additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Jeffrey Cooper". The signature is stylized and fluid, with a long horizontal stroke extending to the right.

Jeffrey Cooper
VP, Marketing for Printwear Division